Economic Summary

Dawn in America is nice enough.
The poor can get cake. Day-old but judged tasty in independent tests.

The middle class has its mouth severely fastened over the anus of Plutocracy. Difficult since how the host swerves for humor's sake!

Some keep protesting what God has so obviously ordained. Nothing will come of that in the strong run: reforms easily reversed. What true good can transpire, now as then, with Bribery the chief national attribute?
